The New Chief Comes Over From Stillwater and Confers With the Mayor.

Considerable Dissatisfaction Expressed at the Selection of a Non-Resident.

Mayor-elect Wright came out of the woods yesterday morning. He took to the horde of greedy office seekers that were lying in wait for him everywhere. Then, too, he wanted a rest before tackling the arduous duties of the mayor's office. He has been traveling alone in the East, studying the workings and effects of a "reform movement" in some of the larger cities, and gathering pointers on matters in general that pertain o municipal government. He comes back refreshed and prepared to carry out his pledges to the various political parties when he assumes the title of 'mayor" and lays that of "col away on the shelf wo short years. But alonel" hough the new mayors return was ing spread like a prairie fire and he had many callers during the day. Some of these callers were Prohibitionists, some independents and many Republicans, but all were on deck to ask favors for either themselves or their friends. From the man who wanted to be a chief or a captain of police down to the one who would be satisfied with a place as hostler in some of the police stables, all dropped in to see the next mayor and lay their claims before him.

One Appointment Certain. A GLOBE reporter called at the blonel's office late in the afternoon, but colonel's office late in the afternoon, but found he had gone home tired out and would not be on drck again until this morning. But it must have been with a feeling of satisfaction that Col. Wright sought his couch last night, for he settled one appointment at least yesterday, and the most important one he has at his disposal. It may be stated, for the benefit of all concerned, that there is going to be a new chief of police, and that official will be repre-sented after June 7 in the person of Albert Garvin, at present warden of the state prison at Stillwater. This was settled vesterday, and Albert Carvin was receiving the congratulations of his more intimate friends in this city last evening. He came to St. Paul yesterday morning in response to a telegram. Col. Wright was waiting for him in a closed Wright was waiting for him in a closed carriage at the union depot, and when Mr. Garvin had taken his seat, on the soft cushions opposite the colonel, the carriage rolled away to the latter's private office where a long conference took place between the two, and which Mr. Garvin left the office his face wore a knowing smile. His wishes were fulfilled, and though

The Salary of Chief of Police is not as large as the one he now receives, the honors are greater. He friends say he will make a model chie and with the strong backing he has re-ceived from the Influential Republicans of the state, Col. Wright could hardly refuse him the office. Later in the day Mr. Garvin in company with Stanford Newel visited some of the leading business men and was introduced as Chief Clark's successor. A leading member of the Republican city committee said last night; "There is no doubt as to Garvin's appointment. It has been 'cut and dried' for several days, only waiting the new mayor's return. The selection may not please everybody, but Garvin has been brought here for a purpose and will carry out the law here despite all obstacles. There is some good material in St. Paul for the place, but Garvin is considered the model man for the posi-

And so he is, especially with the Re-publican politicians. The preference among them was almost universal for among them was almost universal for Garvin and as a matter of course Garvin got the plum. It is probable Maj. Libbey will be pacified with a place as captain, but however that way maybe a mighty howl will go up from a great many citizens over the selection of an outsider for the office of chief. There was a good deal of discussion about the matter on the street last sion about the matter on the street last night, and a number of people who had heard of the selection of Garvin, freely heard of the selection of Garvin, freely criticised it as the new mayor's first mistake. It is certain that the gallant colonel would have put his foot in it one way or the other, whoever he should have selected, but the cry of "non-tax-payer" will be heard for some time after Chief Garvin has donned the big bet and trass buttons.

after Chief Garvin has donned the big hat and brass buttons.

Among the friends of Bean and Harris there is wailing and gnashing of teeth, but the general run of Republicans say that it served them right for washing the dirty linen of the sheriff's before the public, but these same Republicans say that there was no necessity of importing a man as in the person of Maj. SAVED A LIFE.

Rev. Morgan Rescues a Drowning Man at the Bethel.

Rev. D. Morgan, superintendent of the Aethel, rescued a man from drowning at 5 p. m. yesterday. He stood talking to Mr. Niephauser, of the First National bank, when, looking up the river, he saw a man's body coming down with the current and disappear under the Bethel boat. He ran to the rear of the Bethel and jumped into a small boat and awaited the appearance of the body. When it came he reached for it with a stick, caught the coat and pulled the man in, and by the help of others gothim upon the Bethel, when, after rolling some time upon a barrel, signs of life appeared. He was finally sent to the city hospital. This is the second drunken man taken out of the river whom Mr. Morgan and others rescued. His first apwho are all noted singers. His first appearance on the stage was with the Madrigal boys at St. James hall, London. While singing there his father died, and he was sent to live with au uncle in Nevada, and learn the carriage making trade. A traveling minstrel show came along, and, hearing the boy's, sentential raises he was appaged to he. making trade. A traveling ministrer show came along, and, hearing the boy's wonderful voice, he was engaged to accompany them, and thus came to the rotice of professionals. After leaving Birch & Cotten's troupe he was engaged at one time or another with nearly every ministrel troupe on the road and was engerly sought after by them all, finally coming to the notice of George Thatcher, with whom he has since remained. The songs in which he has made the greatest hits are, "With Ail Her Faults I Love her Still," "Poor Blind Boy," "The Lost Chord," and his latest is, "There's a Home for the Wanderer Still." Mr. Jose returnedsto England last summer on a visit to his mother in Cornwal and while there took part in a compilmentary concert. Such enthusiasm was created by his singing that several managers sought to engage him, but owing to his contract with Mr. Thatcher, he steadfastly refused.

cers and the stockholders had a proposition to make to the depositors, and, should the plan be adopted, the problem will have been solved. He explained that it was to have the depositors subscribe 30 per cent of the money they have on deposit to stock; draw out 30 per cent if they wish, and to leave 20 per cent six months and 20 per cent one year. If this, is done the necessary stock with have been disposed of.

This proposition met with hearty applause, and William Hamm was asked to speak. He said that the bank had been placeed in a false light before the public. It had been claimed that the cause of the failure of the bank was directly owing to the insolvency of the Germana Insurance company. This directly owing to the insolvency of the derivative state of the insurance company. This was an error, for the insurance company, was only indirectly responsible. The bank is amply secured for every doller loaned that company, but it was the feeling of fearthat pervaded the depositors that percepitated the failure. He said that $350,000 was drawn out of the bank in two days, and that accounts for the failure. A vote was taken after the subject days, and that accounts for the failure.

A vote was taken after the subject was generally discussed and it was the unanimous wish of the depositors to other into the arrangement suggested by the officers of the bank.
