-The Week in Duluth.

BETSY'S BATTLE FLAG. . From dusk till dawn the livelong night She kent the tallow dips alight, And fast her nimble fingers flew To sew the stars mon the blue. With weary eyes and aching head She stitched the stripes of white and red. And when the day came up the stair Complete across a carven chair Hung Betsy's battle flag. .

Like shadows in the evening gray. The Continentals filed away. With broken boots and rarged coats, But hourse defiance in their throats: They have the marks of want and cold. And some were lame and some were old, And some with wounds untended bled, But floating bravely overhead Was Betsy's battle flug.

When fell the battle's leaden rain, The soldier hushed his moan of pain, And raised his dying head to see King George's troopers turn and flee. Their changing column reeled and broke, And vanished in the rolling smoke, Before the glory of the stars, The snowy stripes and searlet bars Of Retsy's battle flag.

The simple stone of Betsy Ross Is covered now with mold and moss, But still her deathless banner flies, And keeps the color of the skies. A nation thrills, a nation bleeds, A nation follows where it leads, And every man is proud to yield His life upon a crimson field

For Betsy's battle flag. -Minna Irving.

Come, let's see what society has really been doing for the past seven days. Its conspicuous engagements for the week were pienies for Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday; the reception of Thursday afternoon, and of course the soldier benefit of that evening; couching parties on Thursday and Friday, the several excursions, and an especially large picnic yesterday. The prospective weddings, the galety of August, why dancing parties are so scarce, the wonderful success of the concert-dance on Thursday, some new people, and the rage of the visiting girls, are among the topics of conversation.

About each of the visiting girls is revolving a whirl of galety, and so while the various belies have all the engagements they can well keep, the social calendar shows not many general affairs. Every particular borrowed belle has her own following, making a sort of world within a world, the doings of one having little or ttions life here will become gayer constantly. In spite of wars and the rumors of wars and peace. Duluth's summer season is about all that could be desired.

The Superior men have gotten up a German, to be given at the West Superior hotel on Thursday night, for which many invitations have been issued here. Quite number of the young people are already live. planning to go over.

While several of the borrowed belies are not new to Duluth, the men are as free with compliments and as gracious hosts as could be desired. They claim that this summer's visiting list will in every way equal that of past years.

The summer has brought out another debutante in an informal way, and her praises are sounding everywhere.

If the men that are bothering themselves over a couple of noticeable cases would recall to mind an old saying concerning the depth of still waters, they might find considerable comfort.

A most flattering welcome has been accorded the return of a great favorite and bride of the recent past, and she will probably be much feted for the next fort-

Another severe case is going on the credit side of the good looking younger buchfors' society account. No marked surprise is noticed.

The girls and boys have been enjoing the past week or two very much, for they haev had a good share of the entertainments going on; and the set is all together for the vacation at least, and that is a great factor in the general pleasure.

At the party the other night the honors seemed to be in at least four pieces, and the attentions were evenly shared.

A red, white and blue gown on one of the girls has occasioned no end of wonder and questioning as to the soldier's name. . . .

So far, for a long time, each week has been favored with one or more receptions, and it would really be too bad to spoil the good record. The reception funciers are in hopes that some hostess will come to the rescue.

. . . Society has a trio of new recruits, and oll-time idols are almost forgotten; but of course it is only for the present.

The men are talking up another rare one catertainment in no way conflicts treat, and all of the girls are most anxious Molly Bradley, Miss Zilla Eaton, Miss to see the plan carried through. White and yellow were the colors selected by Miss Alice Jones for her reception on Thursday afternoon, and all the details were charmingly worked out in the Gosen shades. The pretty affair was a compliment to Miss Pattee of Minneapolis, who is here spending a couple of weeks with Miss Jones. While the decorations were in white and yellow, two or three big bowls of red poppies added a bit of brilliant coloring to the first parlor, where Miss Jones, Miss Pattee and Miss Georgia Everst received. The mantel in the second parlor was banked with daisies and large bunches of the flowers and grasess were scattered through the rooms. The punch table in here was sweet and fresh with myrtle." Miss Belle Simonds served the punch. At the table in the dining room Mrs. William Quayle and Miss Bernice Crowley presided. On an embroidered yellow center piece stood a big cut glass bowl filled to overflowing with ex-eved daisles, the flowers used in the dining room decorations. Yellow saun ribbon ran about the edge of the table and was gathered into large bows at the corners. Myrtle and dalsies were scattered over the cloth. The ices, cakes and candles were in vellow and white. From Eyster, Mrs. James C. Geggie, Miss Iona Geggie, Miss Virginia La Vaque, Miss

For a long time it has been the earnest woman's club, an organization of great importance to all of Duluth women, and quently talked of. Many of the literary leaders are anxious for immediate steps to be taken, and the time seems ripe for some move in this direction. Among the most earnest advocates of the Duluth has but recently returned from a winter spent in Washington with Congressman and Mrs. Page Morris. While away, Miss Statham took particular interest in the cessful carrying out of the plan here. She also noticed other things, and no doubt the following interview will be of me greatest interest to the society and literary women of the town.

"So you would really like to know what among the women of the capital that would aid in the advancing of our women of Duluth. Well, since the watchword of the age is 'progress,' and our women must not be in the rear, I most unhesitatingly declare for a woman's club, an organized center of thought, a place of meeting for the clever society woman Miss Bessie Strayer, Miss Marguerite and the earnest working girl. There is a On Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. D. D. Miss Molly Bradley, Miss Elia Fitsgerald in Duluth. It will be the means of mak-

All communities have these faults to contend against, more or less, and we, too, must fight against them.

"One of the finest results in civic reformation throughout the country has undoubtedly been brought about by the combined and harmonious co-operation of i. the woman's club with the civic federation, where the women in all instances, have insisted on filling institutions withofficials that are fitted by education and experience to deat with the serious problems of the day, and in doing good of every kind. One could go on enumerating how well the woman's club has handled the complex question of charities, the cause of public education, the establishing of thorough sanitary regulations, and all social and moral reforms. But all this will come to us in time if we can only prevail on our women to make a beginning.

To be sure, it is said society here is divided in many clubs and cliques, and it is difficult for anybody to take the initiative step, and, too, that each one has a most attractive program mapped out for study next winter. However, each argument may be easily met. As to these programs or particular lines of study, they might well be utilized in the woman's club by assigning a representative day to each of the smaller clubs, when all the material and knowledge on the certain subject and their best talent could be put forward for the benefit of the larger club.

"And as for the officers-there need be no friction about selecting them, if we would draw on the oldest club in the city for our president and look to each of the remaining clubs for the other executive members. We have a large number of true and tried women in the older clubs that will most acceptably fill many of the offices, women that are fitted by educational hope of many of the women to have a big advantages and high social position, ones in whom the public and old residents will place implicit confidence, and will be glad one with unlimited membership and w.ue to honor as pioneers in the literary, social Mr. Ward Jackson of Goshen, Ind., is scope. Last winter the matter was fre- and philantropic work of our city. We all know a number of brilliant women that have come among us in the past few years, women also of fine executive ability. We should see that they are not overlooked in the distribution of the offices.

"I particularly desire to draw your attention to the need of thorough unselfishness in our club, for that is the distingnishing feature of the successful women's clubs of the large Eastern cities. Their women are very broad in their training. progressive in their ideas, and eager to push forward all good work, to open up the ideal life to every woman they meet. So thoroughly unselfish, so full of the spirit of reform, so imbued with that spiritual intuition that forces them to carry all good work among their less fortunate sisters. These noble, earnest, unselfish women do not seek the positions, as they are known to be far removed from the spirit of self-seeking. They care little whether they are on the committees or not, but their friends generally see that they are out there.

Twoking women's guide. If that term I mean 'self-supporting' women that realize the wital principle that the only way to dignify labor is to infuse it with intelligence, and under task head is included every occupation open to women.

"What particularly recommends a woman's club is so much pleasure for the little money spent. By the payment of it annually from 20 to 20 members, we could at once have attractive assembly and reading rooms. With the addition of a strength of the country o
