Name Unsatisfactory. The usual serenity of the Political Equality club was rent at the meeting last evening by a heated discussion over changing the name of the organization. The discussion was led by Dr. Ethel Hurd, president of the club, and Dr. Martha G. Ripley, who stated that the present name is indefinite and causes many people to mistake the club causes many people to mistake the club for a political organization when in reality its sole object is the furtherance of woman suffrage. Various names of woman suffrage. Various names were suggested and rejected, and at the height of the argument one woman proposed "Clinging Vine club" as appropriate so long as the members were afraid to stand by their more aggressive title. Finally the motion was laid on the table, and the new year book will be issued under the original title "Political Equality club." "The Legal Status of Women! was the subject of an interesting talk by A. H. Bright, and a resolution was adopted expressing regret on the departure of Dr. Cora Smith Eaton who will leave soon for Seattle.
