ary 15 and Sig. Alessandro Bonci March 19, have surpassed all past records in Duluth's musical history. Up to last night over 200 course seats had been subscribed for, and orders for reservations are being received daily. These seats have been reserved by Duluth's most prominent people, socially and musically, and when the list is completed it is conceded that the audiences will be unusually brilliant. At the first concert on October 16 the stars will be Alice Nielsen of the Boston Opera company and Riccardo Martin of the Metropolitan Opera company, New York.

Whenever Riccardo Martin's eleven-year-old daughter approves his singing of an aria or song the great Metropolitan Opera House tenor is satisfied he will please his audience. Martin, just finished with his second season as principal tenor at Covent Garden (London) is resting in Italy with his family preparatory to beginning his first concert tour of his own country. The singer who shares leading tenor roles with Caruso at the first opera house of the world is at work upon his repertoire and no song, he is to sing, will be uttered publicly until his musically talented eleven-year-old daughter has heard it sung.

"Even an artist can learn," says Martin, "and it is not always that the trained musical conductor and coach is able to impart every particle of helpful advice required in the interpretation of an aria or some particular phrase. Unceasing study is the factor that counts most in advancing one in any chosen career, and I never fail to sing my great operatic airs to my daughter that I may benefit by her critical remarks. Her powers of musical differentiation are remarkable and when I sing well enough to please her, I know public recognition is reasonably sure."
