Herman and Lillie Knutson, charged with grand larceny in the second degree, were brought before Municipal Judge Cutting yesterday. They pleaded not guilty and will be heard Jan. 5. This is the couple who Ole Roen claims got away with his bank roll and ticket to Canada while he was a guest at their house.

Frank Heinrich, rear of 625 West Superior street, appeared charged with selling liquor on Sunday. His hearing occurs today and he furnished bail of $100.

A raid in New Duluth last night brought Mary Rabotich and Mary Serdich into the grasp of the law, charged with selling liquor without a license. Their case will be tried today.

Mike Miller claimed he didn't go to the police station to be arrested but to get a night's lodging. The jailer claimed he was intoxicated, and so charged him. He told the judge he had only two drinks and certainly could not be overcome by such an amount. He accepted five days behind the bars.

Charles Olson and Charles Nelson fell into Sergeant Roberg's hands on the bowery on a charge of swindling in a card game preferred against them two months ago. Judge Cutting bound them over to the grand jury. The case arose from a poker game in a bowery resort, the complainant being Carl Boline, a farmer.

Costa Lacokocich, 526½ West First street, appeared charged with selling liquor without a license. His argument will be heard today.

Olaf Nelson will appear this morning to explain the charge of third degree larceny filed against him by Abraham Litman, who claims Nelson got away with a fur coat valued at $10 and later reappeared and wanted to sell a pair of rubbers. He recognized Nelson and promptly caused his arrest.
