

Suffrage Movement Having Its Effect

Cognizant, perhaps, of the rapid growth in strength of the champion for "woman's rights" and the resultant increase in powers and privileges of the so called "weaker sex," there is at least one man in Superior who does not attempt to say that what belongs to his wife belongs to him. The discovery was made in municipal court yesterday when Sam Solomovich was arraigned charged with allowing his chickens to run at large.

Solomovich averred that the chickens were not his, but belonged to his wife. The wife corroborated this, and Judge Parker thereup informed Captain Olson, who had secured the warrant, that if he was not prepared to prove that the chickens belonged to the husband the case would have to be dismissed.

When told that the fowls would have to be shut up or that a warrant would be secured for the wife with a possible like fate in store for him, the couple agreed to see that the birds would be restrained.
