

Young Girls' Industrial Society

MISS ROSE KARON.

President of Young Girl's Industrial Society.

The Young Girls' Industrial society is unique among charitable associations in Duluth because of the youth and the small number of members in proportion to the results accomplished. There are but seven members and they are girls of from 14 to 18, and yet the society undertakes and accomplishes much, at present providing the necessities of life for four different families.

Three weeks or so ago, they gave a dance to raise money for their charges and cleared $50 on it, and they have given several other affairs so that they could supply the families with money, food and clothing. There is also a social aspect to the society which meets twice monthly for a social afternoon, when musical numbers are given and the members discuss the care of the families they are helping and the distribution of goods to them.

The Industrial society members are Rose Coran, president; Ruth Siegel, secretary; Edith Karon, treasurer; Mary Simon, Ida Berkson, Bessie Simon and Fanny Weinberg.
