FIVE CENTS.

BNAI BRITH, THE ORDER OF BENEVOLENCE

C. D. ORECKOVSKY, Secretary of Local Society.

WHO WAS PRESENTED A MEDAL BY THE SOCIETY.

BENEVOLENCE, brotherly love, harmony is the three-fold purpose of the B'nai Brith order, the society that has recently presented President Taft with a gold medal awarded him in accord with the annual custom, that gives away each year to the man or woman, irrespective of creed, who has contributed most during the year to the welfare of the Jewish cause.

The medal was presented for the reasons stand that the president had taken on questions of immigration, in which the Jewish people have a vital interest, although they are no less significant to lovers of liberty and justice the world over, and through the belief that the position taken by him as the head of a great nation gives new hope of better days to come for the persecuted Jewish race.

B'nai Brith, "born a Jew" is a society doing a unique work. To it came the newcomers, the men young and old, seeking a home and freedom from persecution in the new land. Kindly counsel, advice and brotherly aid is extended them in the selfless spirit of helpfulness for which the Jew is famous. At its head are such men as Jacob Schiff of New York, Jacob Furth of St. Louis, Adolph Kraus of Chicago, Jacob Sager of Philadelphia and Lucius Solomon of San Francisco, men of national reputation in the professional and business world, yet who find time to do active work in uplift activities for their people.

Philanthropic Work of Many Kinds Accomplished.
The local branch of the society numbers the prominent Jewish people of the city in its membership, officers serving at the present time being: President, Louis Zalk; vice president, J. C. Birnberg; secretary, Maurice, Charles D. Oreckovsky. Locally the B'nai Brith affiliates with the associated charities, although it does some individual charity where

Kaiser Prohibits "Palace Flying"

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The Kaiser has issued a warning to the German aerial fleet that it must not fly over the new palace at Potsdam.
Owing to the sharp explosive noise made by the motors over the palace, they were way to annoy Berlin, the emperor ordered, to have the aerial route altered.
The Kaiser said that she would like the palace to be in the form of a rectangle, instead of a command. Nevertheless, flights over Potsdam are now forbidden, and the great Zeppelin airships must make a detour around the city.
The emperor was not only annoyed by the noise of the aerial engines, but he expressed the fear that an airplane might meet with sudden disaster and fall on the palace.
LETTERS IN THE FOREGROUND.
We understand Gen. Castor's complaint, the view of America from the island leaves much to be desired.

It is found advisable and assists in supporting the orphanage branch to which it belongs. The national society is divided in branches and orphanages are maintained at New York, Chicago, Denver, San Francisco and New Orleans. Here the orphaned children of Jewish parents are cared for and given a vocation, so that when they leave the friendly shelter of the home they are equipped to meet the world and earn a livelihood. In Denver the B'nai Brith supports a hospital that is non-sectarian, all peoples and creeds finding help at its hospitable doors.

About 150,000 Jews in America are enrolled in the membership of the B'nai Brith and, in addition to the benevolent work done in America the society reaches helping hands across the ocean to the persecuted Jew of other lands, securing American aid when possible to alleviate the hardships of their people and bringing them to the new land of freedom and justice.

President Taft, in his speech of acceptance, at the time the medal was presented him by the society, voiced the American attitude toward the Jew, when he said: "It is a source of great satisfaction that the movement of the Jews upward and onward to complete and world-wide recognition of their merit and to social justice everywhere has had its most successful impulse in this country."

"Upon the Jewish people it is not necessary for me to pronounce eulogium. In their just pride of their ancestry those of us who are not of the Jewish people have to be humble. The genius, the strength of your race, the patience and the persistence with which you pursue your purpose to maintain your rights and exact your share—all make your an exceptional history in the history of the world."
"The persecutions to which you have been subjected because of your religion, have, in a sense, doubtless, developed the character and tenacity of your race, but it needs a free country like the United States to develop the flower and enable you to show to the world at large that wonderful capacity of the race as supporters of the frontier, trying to find a government of freedom, and a government that insists on equality before the law."

Girl Is Found Hungry in Woods

GENEVA, Jan. 25.—In a forest near Rorschach, on the Swiss-Austrian frontier, two Swiss woodcutters found a famished girl and assisted her down to the valley. In bad German she explained that she belonged to a Gypsy tribe, which had recently driven her away for possession of the "evil eye," and her parents did not want her to return. She has only one eye, the sight of the second having been lost in an accident. She did not know her name or age, but called herself Nina.
The girl appears to have endured many hardships, but it will be very difficult to find her parents, who have driven her from home, as there are many bands of Gypsies at this part of the frontier, trying to find Switzerland and being constantly repulsed by the Swiss gendarmes. When she has recovered and is in better health, Nina will probably be handed over to the Austrian authorities. It is an unfortunate case of superstition among the wandering Gypsy tribes infesting the Swiss frontiers.

Nero's "Folly" Being Found

Golden House of Roman Emperor Shows Interesting Excavations.

DR. FRITZ WEEGE IS BEHIND OPERATIONS

Drawings and Paintings of Sixteenth Century Being Brought to Light.

ROME, Jan. 25.—Very interesting excavations are being made in Nero's "Golden House" by the Italian government, whose attention was drawn to the subject by Dr. Fritz Weege, a young German archaeologist, author of a treatise, published last July, on one of the rooms in that vast palace, Nero's "folly," of which the wits said that it would embrace all Rome, and that the good citizens, enraging in quest of apartments to sell, would probably find that it had extended thrice that occupied by the present Vatican with all its appurtenances. Erected after the burning of Rome in 64, the Golden House extended from the Palatine far up the Esquiline, and of which the artistic Emperor completed the building, that "he has now lodged as a man should be," was converted by his successors into other edifices, according to the plan of the Colosseum arose on the site of the Neronian lake, the baths of Titus and of Trajan respectively represent other portions of the Neronian Palace. The immense and richly-decorated galleries were more than half filled up with earth, and when the writer visited the excavations with Dr. Weege, they had to grope through the dark, bent nearly double, to avoid touching the ceiling.

The importance of these excavations is due to the fact that some of the most famous paintings and frescoes of the sixteenth century, when the baths of Trajan were more easily accessible, were copied, often erroneously from the beautiful decorations, which the removal of the accumulated earth is now bringing to light. Descending from a lovely orange garden into the underground passages, we found ourselves in the room, marked No. 80 which Dr. Weege's plan is a sketch of which the famous "Laocoon" is said to have been found in 1506. During the last few days a marble hand of the same marble as the "Laocoon" was unearthed here, and it was hoped that it might prove to be part of the missing limb of the statue.

Of the mural paintings the most interesting is that of a warrior with a helmet, a Roman holding a child (clearly visible in the painting), and another woman in the background where a gate and battlements are visible. The artist identifies this painting with the touching scene in the "Iliad" of the departure of Hector from Andromache. The other paintings, copied here by Carracci and the Bartoli, is to be seen (but without the child) at Windsor, England, and has consequently been mislabeled as "Coriolanus and his Mother." Another scene is likewise drawn from Homer—Paris and Helen introduced to one another by Aphrodite and Eros. Dr. Weege infers accordingly that these Homeric tableaux were specially chosen in allusion to Nero's youth, the "Troia," mentioned by Suetonius and Dion Cassius and satirized by Juvenal, an extract from which, the emperor's "folly" while Rome was burning. Thus these discoveries enable students of art to correct the designs copied from these now lost in the collection at Windsor, Eton, and Holkham Hall, England.

Modern Rip Van Winkle Dies in the Catskills

HUNTER, N. Y., Jan. 25.—Not until after the funeral at Haines Falls yesterday did the residents of this Catskill section learn that a modern Rip Van Winkle, in the person of John Green, had died. Green, had taken his own life under unusual circumstances.
"Old Gib's" body was found Friday in a cave in the woods in a coffin which he had himself put out of rough timber. Beside him were his rifle, dog, his gun and a bottle which had contained poison.
Green was a member of an old Green colony in the Catskills, and spent practically all of his days in the mountains. His sharp beard and head made him almost the living type of Washington Irving's famous Catskill character.

Big Difference in Value of Husbands

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Analysis of the numerous suits which widows have brought for damages because of the loss of their husbands in the Titanic disaster has brought to light the striking differences in the monetary values that women placed on their husbands.
The suits ranged from $25,000 to $2,000,000, the record high figure being that sued for by Mrs. Henry E. Harris, widow of the prominent theatrical manager.
The attorney lawyer declares today that the differences in damages sought was due chiefly to the various earning capacities of the husbands, taking into consideration also the age. The style in which the wife had been accustomed to live was also a consideration.

Pastor Gives the Roughs a Lesson

SYDNEY, Jan. 18.—The Rev. John Hosking, congregational minister, who does a great deal of work in the slum quarters of Melbourne, has given a lesson to a gang of roughs who visited his church by company on a Sunday evening pastime and interrupted the service by whistling and making offensive remarks. Earlier they had broken the windows.
Mr. Hosking left his pulpit, took off his surplice, and, walking up to the ring-leader, an athletic lad of nineteen, dealt him a heavy blow on the jaw. The interrupter went down and his followers were so astonished that they were easily ejected.
"This may seem a strange way to conduct a church," said Mr. Hosking afterwards, "but what can a man do? Must the neighborhood be deprived of these services because some twenty hooligans choose to try to break them up? I have to be a detective and a pugilist as well as a preacher."
CONGESTION AT ELEVATORS.
WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 25.—The Canadian Northern Railway company today announced that an embargo had been placed upon all grain shipments to Fort Arthur, Ont., by that railway for one month owing to congestion at terminal elevators.
WISCONSIN PREACHER INJURED.
CHICAGO, Jan. 25.—Four persons were hurt when two trains collided on the Jackson Park branch of the South Side elevated railroad. Rev. Louis Hoffner of Deperre, Wis., was among those injured. His knee cap was broken and he was hurt internally.

Plan to Complete the St. Marks A. M. E. Church

A movement for a $5,000 church structure will be inaugurated this week by the Rev. Tyler of the African Methodist church.
The congregation, numbering 50, now holds worship at the corner of Fifth avenue East and Sixth street in the basement structure of their church, which is the extent of the progress made on a new building started several years ago.
With an excellent foundation and basement complete the congregation aided by a few outsiders, should be able to erect an imposing edifice capable of accommodating at least 300 people, for the sum of $5,000, which is the amount that the Rev. Tyler will start out to raise this week.
"We have an excellent site there and a good foundation, as well as an adequate basement, in which we now worship. St. Mark's is the only colored people's worshipping place in the city. There are about 250 of my race in the city that demand some congregation with which to be identified."
"I believe that by soliciting subscriptions among our most influential people and also of the other denominations in the city—any person interested in religious welfare—that we will be able to raise the needed amount. We do not plan to construct the building and have it heavily encumbered by indebtedness. It is planned to raise the full amount necessary first."
Rev. Tyler has only been here since last September, having been transferred here from Galesburg, Ill., where he was successful in raising funds and erecting one of the finest churches among the colored denominations of the United States. The edifice is known as Allan's chapel. Because of his great success with this church he was delegated by the conference to this new field.

Berlin Preparing for 1916 Olympic

Germany Hopes to Train a Team of "World-Beating" Athletes in Next Few Years.
BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Thirty thousand athletes will parade before the Kaiser on June 8 on the occasion of the dedication of the stadium now being constructed in the Grunewald raccourse, outside Berlin, for the Olympic games of 1916. From this body Germany hopes to train a team of "world-beating" athletes.
Twenty thousand competitors will be sent by leading athletic organizations and 10,000 will be recruited from schools, colleges and a new "Young Germany" league. The athletes from each organization will do homage as they pass the imperial box and will finally sing the national anthem in unison.
By borrowing the best features of the American training method and with the aid of a generous government subsidy the German athletes count on being able to make themselves irresistible by 1916. University athletes will hold a great Olympic preliminary in the summer of 1915.
TEACHER IS STRICKEN BLIND AT BLACKBOARD
GARRETSON, S. D., Jan. 25.—Miss Marie Rollag, a school teacher at this place, was stricken blind while at work at a blackboard in her schoolroom. She was writing examples on the board for one of her classes when her eyesight failed. The students took her to her home and a physician was called.
