

BOYS, TOO EAGER TO CARRY GRIPS, HEAR FISKETT TALK

An impressive lecture, with two shivering boys as an audience and Captain Fiskett at police headquarters on the platform, was given yesterday as the result of complaints that Bennie Zlatkovsky, age 12, and Harry Levenson, age 14, had been aggressive in soliciting grips to carry near the Union station.

Business men of that locality told the police the boys would almost grapple with incoming passengers for possession of the grips. The captain told them that was not the proper way to get rich, and upon the boys promising they would discontinue the practice, he let them go without further punishment.
