

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN SOCIETY

Coronach.
He is gone on the mountain.
He is lost to the forest.
Like a summer dried fountain.
When our need was the forest.
The front reappearing.
From the raindrops shall borrow.
But to us comes no cheering.
To Duncan no morrow!

The hand of the reaper
Takes the ears that are hoary.
But the voice of the weeper
Walls manhood in glory.
The autumn winds rushing
Waft the leaves that are hoary.
But our flower was in flushing
When the blighting was nearest.

Fleet foot on the coral
Sage counsel in amber.
Red hand in the foray.
How sound is thy slumber!
Like the dew on the mountain.
Like the foam on the river.
Like the bubble on the fountain.
Thou art gone, and forever!

—Walter Scott.

The following article is taken from the Daily Journal of Salem, Ore., and will be read with interest here as Mr. Elton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Elton, 604 Belmont avenue, and made his home here for a number of years.

Mrs. Florence Churchill, second daughter of State Superintendent and Mrs. J. A. Churchill, who was married to James F. Elton, of Astoria, Wednes. being a young bride, took advantage of a famous artist's advice recently given regarding the wedding gown of the young woman in her early twenties. "There should be something very youthful and very appealing about it," said "Something fragile, evanescent, perhaps like the flower of the apple tree bloom. No idea could be more prettily expressed, and Miss Churchill's gown was as nearly like this description as it was possible for a gown to be. She wore nothing that looked like a gown, like cloth as a succession of clouds. It was made of billowy net and was fashioned on exquisite lines. It fell from a rounded neck and ran down into short puffed sleeves, which were high waisted and the short skirt which was very full, displayed a tier of ruffles, topped with tiny daisy blossoms. Her long tulle veil was held in a coronet with a strand of pearls and an iridescent ornament. Her bouquet was quite marvelous, a great cluster of bride's roses combined with lilies of the valley, and maidenhair and asparagus fern. The bridal group included Miss Marie Churchill, a sister of the bride, as maid of honor, who wore a dainty frock of pink crepe de meteor, ornamented with tiny blue roses. Miss Zoe Bragg, of Redlands, California, Miss Doris Churchill, another sister of the bride, wore a gown of pink crepe de meteor, and Miss Bragg wore a frock of figured organdie; Miss Churchill's frock being of pink crepe de chine. A pretty detail in the detail was introduced into short puffed sleeves, which were high waisted and the short skirt which was very full, displayed a tier of ruffles, topped with tiny daisy blossoms.
