

BILLIONS MORE

CHIEFS OF VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS TELL THE AMOUNTS NEEDED FOR FISCAL YEAR.

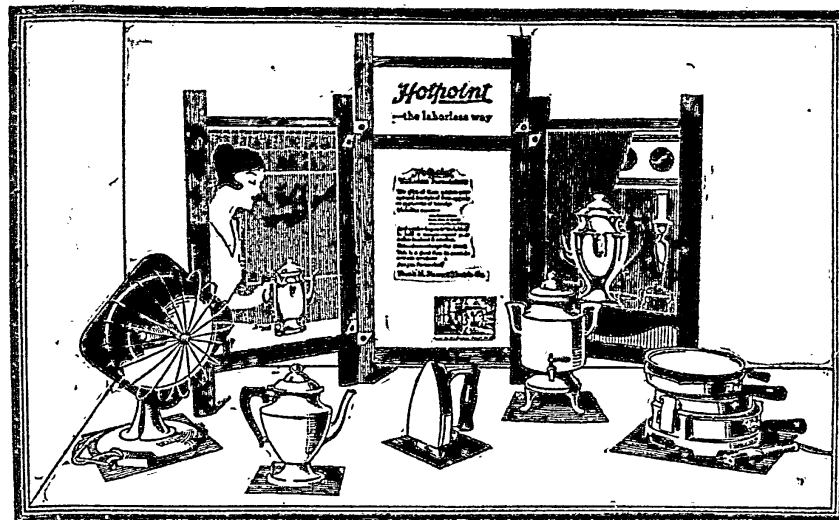

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—It was learned at the treasury department today that the latest estimates from the heads of the various executive departments of the government made to Secretary McAdoo show that $10,000,000,000 will be needed to defray the expenditures of the nation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918. The money will be raised by additional bond issues and short term certificates, and includes loans to the allies which have been authorized up to the end of the fiscal year.

According to the latest estimates furnished by the secretary of the treasury from the cabinet officers, their several departments will require an expenditure of $12,701,000,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1918. This sum includes all ordinary disbursements and war expenditures but does not take into account any loans that may be made to the allies for the next fiscal year. The estimates do not include any expenditures on account of the post-office department, as that branch of the government is regarded as self-sustaining, but they do include interest on bonds already authorized.

These estimates of expenditures are made under existing conditions and with the information now at hand. Whether they will be increased as the preparations for the war and navy departments continue cannot be stated at this time.
