

The Curious Reporter

In His Travels, Each Day, He Asks Five Persons a Question.

THE QUESTION.

IS AN AUTOMOBILE A LUXURY?

THE ANSWERS.

RUTH GRANT, Ninth avenue East:
"No, almost anyone ought to be able to afford some kind of car now—so it's not a luxury. Of course, if you're thinking about those upward of $5,000 it's a different matter."

MAYME MARSHALL, East Superior street: "Buying an automobile isn't a luxury but paying for the gasoline at the present rates certainly is."

TED MEREDITH, owner of one: "No, indeed; they're a handicap."

SAM LEVENSON, barber: "How should I know when I never had enough money to own one."

MARTIN BROWN, printer, 926 East Fifth street: "It's a necessity for a man wooing a girl."