SAFETY AND SERVICE

NO Detours

On a man's drive toward financial independence, how many things can make him detour over the bumpy roads of financial worry. But not if he has a reserve of ready cash, in the form of a steadily growing Savings Account. For then he has the means to protect himself from sudden emergencies—and the confidence to take advantage of an opportunity that means a "short cut" to his goal.

Don't you think it would be worth while to come in, open your Savings Account now—and, by adding to it regularly, avoid detours on your road to the future?

NO STATE SO POOR BUT THAT IT BOASTS A "LOVERS LEAP"

Some one has said that "local tradition makes it possible to point out any place more than 11 inches high as a place from which an Indian maiden, folled in love, hurled herself to her death and people will believe it." That's an exaggeration, of course, but it does seem that no state in the Union is so poor in scenic attractions but that it has at least one "Lovers Leap." New York has one, and so does Virginia, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri and Michigan has two! And those are probably only a few of the many.

The stories back of these places are a varied lot. Read about some of them in the illustrated feature article "Lovers Leap" by Elmo Scott Watson, in this issue of The Ely Miner.

FRENCH DRIVER SUBMITS COUNTY FAIR ENTRY.

Jean Duray, fiery French race driver, is the early bird entry for the St. Louis County fair auto race, which will be held at Hibbing on August 26 on the last day of the fair which opens August 24.

Secretary Les W. Emery has received the entry of the French star, who has recently been in South America and came to the United States this spring in hopes of getting a mount at the 500-mile race at Indianapolis.

Duray was born in a little town in northern France, but was brought up near Paris, where he learned the auto speed game as a tester for one of the great motor factories of France. He migrated to the Argentine and turned his attention to auto racing which was just coming to its own in the foremost of the South American countries.

Having heard much of the Indianapolis speedway Duray set out for the United States at the first opportunity. In the Hoosier city he did not find it easy to step in as he thought it would be and discovered that there were three or four drivers for every place open on any racing team.

When offered a chance to compete on the dirt tracks, the Frenchman grasped the opportunity and this year he was at the wheel of the French Peugeot, which he will drive at the Iowa and Minnesota state fairs as well as Hibbing.

DEANE RUNDLETT, WELL KNOWN SERVICE MAN DIES SATURDAY.

Deane S. Rundlett, 35, editor of "Fins, Feathers and Fur," official publication of the Minnesota state game and fish commission and for many years a leader of the conservation movement in this state, died Saturday at the United States veterans hospital. He was a veteran of the World War and had been ill for several years as the result of being gassed in France.

He held various offices with the Minnesota division of thezaak Walton league before he was elected president. He resigned as president in June 1932 because of bad health. Since that time he has been associated with the state game and fish commission as editor.

HEAVY SPRINKLINGS BEST FOR LAWNS.

The right way to water a lawn is to give it a thorough soaking at each application, says L. E. Longley, landscape specialist of the division of Horticulture, University of Minnesota. Frequent and shallow sprinkling causes the grass roots to grow near the surface which is exactly what they should not do, particularly in time of drought.

Enough water should be applied to soak the ground down to a depth of at least six inches, Mr. Longley says. When enough water has been applied the soil becomes springy under foot and water can be squeezed out when heavy pressure is applied with the foot.

Sometimes fertilizers, such as sulphate of ammonia, are applied to the lawns during the summer months. If this is done, it is very important that the lawn be heavily watered after the application of the fertilizer to prevent burning.

PERMITS FOR EXCAVATIONS UNDER TRUNK PAVEMENTS.

Before excavations are made for water or sewer connections or for other purposes in city or village streets which are designated as trunk highways, permits must be obtained from the Highway department's district superintendent, says a Highway bulletin.

The first purpose of this is to prevent accidents which often occur if such excavations are not marked with proper warning signs and lights at night. The second is to see that the pavement or other surface material is restored promptly. Usually the applicant is required to deposit a certified check as a guarantee that the work will be done promptly and properly.

To prevent unnecessary tearing up of pavements, the Highway department requires that sewer and water connections be made before pavements are put in. Business and residence growth however, has a tendency to follow trunk highway streets, requiring water and sewer extensions and connections. The Highway department insists that such work shall not create a traffic hazard.

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Mildew stains, when very fresh, may sometimes be washed out with soap and water or bleached in the sun. The growth of mildew is at first on the surface of materials that have been allowed to become damp, but in a short time these molds penetrate the fiber and injure it, and are almost impossible to eradicate. Soaking the stains in sour milk over night and placing in the sun without rinsing, will sometimes help. Slight stains are sometimes removed by moistening them with lemon juice and salt and placing in the sun. Javelle water, used as a bleach will take out mildew stains on white cotton or linen but should never be used on silk or wool. Chemicals are also used as dimes. Mildew on shoes may be wiped off as soon as detected, and the shoes washed with soap and warm water, and well dried. Stuff the shoes with soft crumpled paper or dry oats, and dry in a warm, but not hot place.

(From U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.) Blackberry juice makes an appetizing punch, combined with other fruit juices, lemon, sugar and ginger ale.

When a baked potato is done, work it until the skin is loose, jab a fork into one side and make an opening to let out the steam. Drop in a lump of butter and serve at once.

A lighted match, cigarette, or cigar thrown from an airplane or other aircraft may set fire to a forest, grain field, or buildings. If mixed travel by this modern means of transportation, be careful not to throw out any burning material.

Wrapping apples in oiled paper wrappers or packing them in shredded oiled-paper protects them from the scald disease. When shredded paper is used it is important that it be well distributed throughout the package.

Apples packed less when packed in boxes, baskets, or ventilated barrels than when packed in the usual tight barrels.

Be more careful in making silage from legume crops than from nonleguminous crops, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Legumes have a lower sugar content from which the acids necessary in preserving silage are developed. All the legumes may be ensiled successfully if mixed with a crop containing much sugar, such as corn or sorghum, or they may be ensiled alone if not too succulent when cut.

The pullets in the poultry flock that lay persistently in late summer and fall and molt late in the season are likely to make the best breeders next spring, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Pullets that molt early in their pullet laying year are usually poorer layers than the ones that molt late in the fall. The early molter also stops producing eggs early in the summer or fall, whereas the late molter persists in laying well throughout that period and makes a good annual record.

Differences in persistency of production of birds is also shown by the bleached appearance of their beaks and shanks. The color of the beaks and shanks of the best layers usually bleaches more quickly than is the case with birds that lay only intermittently.

AFTER four weeks of intensive campaigning on the part of the entrants to the Greater Movie Contest conducted at the Ely Theatre by R. B. Brown and Manager Cox, the campaign closed Tuesday evening and the winners declared from the stage of the theatre that evening.

The contest was a spirited affair and developed some fine campaigning on the part of the candidates. Early in the game there were in the neighborhood of fifty candidates entered. The field was eliminated and on the closing night had been narrowed down to about 12. The winners as announced were as follows:

Miss Agnes Petek, Plymouth car or $600.00.
Miss Theresa Dargontina, Trip to Hollywood or $200.00.
William Erickson, Graybar Radio or $100.00.

Nine season tickets to the Ely Theatre were awarded to successful contestants.

Miss Petek and Miss Dargontina selected the cash awards while Mr. Erickson selected the radio set.

FOLKS who yearn to know more about bees than they have been able to pick up from poetry and hearsay may have their curiosity satisfied at the Minnesota State Fair, August 30 to September 6, says H. G. Ahrens of the beekeeping section at University Farm. Mr. Ahrens is superintendent of the bee culture department of the fair this year and is arranging many educational features in addition to the commercial exhibits.

Just outside the building where the bee culture exhibits are to be shown will be placed several hives of Italian bees belonging to the University Farm beekeeping section. Several times daily, public demonstrations in handling bees will be put on without the use of smoke, gloves, veils or any other form of repellent or protection. The hives will be opened, the frames removed and other operations common to the bee-yard performed as a means of acquainting visitors with the work of a beekeeper and particularly to show how gentle the little insects are when properly managed.

Another feature that will give visitors "inside dope" on bees will be the glass observation hives kept inside the building. One of these will contain a full sized colony of 50,000 or more bees and their queen. Protected by the glass, visitors may watch the bees at work making comb, feeding the young, ventilating the hive and doing many other interesting things. The queen, herself, will have a red stripe painted on her abdomen to enable folks to identify her while she is at work laying eggs.
