Feed Cows Well and Forget Heat, Flies.

Surprising it is, how much heat and how many flies a good cow can stand on a full stomach, says Mat M. Allen, dairy division, University Farm. When cows fall off in milk production during July and August, the real cause is usually that pastures have become dry and short. Even if there is plenty of grazing, many grasses are beginning to mature and go to seed—they are higher in fiber, lower in protein, and less digestible. Therefore, the cow not only is getting insufficient nutrients, but if the pasture is short, she is not getting enough roughage or bulk. Some bulky feed should be given in addition to grain. For this purpose, turning the cows in on an emergency pasture, such as sweet clover, is an excellent plan where possible.

Cutting green corn or alfalfa each day and feeding it to the cows is satisfactory, except that it requires much time and labor. Good silage and alfalfa hay serve just as well, and are much easier to feed. When pastures are short, the grain ration should contain more protein than is necessary during the spring. A grain mix similar to that fed during the winter, is needed. Some such mixture as ground barley and ground oats, to which has been added some cottonseed, linseed, gluten meal, will serve very well. Cows producing 25 pounds of milk or more should be fed grain at the rate of about a pound for each 4 or 5 pounds of milk. The amount of extra roughage needed will depend on the condition of the pasture, but should be adequate to provide a full feed.

With reasonably good cows, the returns for this extra feeding will be seen not only right now, but also next winter because the cows will remain in better condition, Mr. Allen says.

Dragon's Sword Found
What is declared to be a dragon's sword of the Seventeenth century period, and probably a relic of the Covenanting days, was found at Stonehouse, Scotland, by two school boys. The sword was firmly incased in what appeared to be a leather scabbard, but age so rotted it that it fell to pieces when the weapon was withdrawn. The blade is hooked, heavily rusted and measures 30 inches from hilt to tip.

Immense Live Oak
A live oak, known as the Arnold Robert oak, near Beaver bridge, Louisiana, measures 23 feet 5 inches in circumference and has a spread of 125 feet, said to be the largest oak in a state of big specimens of this noble tree.

Iron Trade Coming Back Slowly But Surely.

Iron ore on docks at Lake Erie ports August 1, totaled 5,298,383 tons. This compares with 5,305,093 tons one year ago and 5,750,363 tons on April 1, 1932. Carnegie Steel Co., a U. S. Steel subsidiary has resumed operations at Youngstown. Two blast furnaces also went into production. More than 2,000 employees are affected.

American Steel & Wire was awarded an order for 210,000 lb. of wire strand by the U. S. engineer at Kansas City. Pennsylvania Railroad has released orders for 7,000 tons of structural steel for station and viaduct at Newark, N. J. American Steel & Wire is shipping 4,000 to 5,000 tons pig iron to its Duluth steel plant, by boat. The Duluth steel plant has two blast furnaces, though idle at present. Three open hearth furnaces are producing on scrap steel, and the pig iron which is being delivered is used in that connection.

The Daily Metal Trade reports merchant iron shipments for July much larger than for June. Many small and some isolated foundries have come into the market.

Iron Age says, "A sharp rise in scrap prices at Chicago and Pittsburgh, and strengthening of non-ferrous metals rules a slight increase in consumer interest in steel and pig and an actual expansion in demand for wire products from agricultural areas are signs of betterment of an upturn in the steel and allied metal working industries. There has been no abatement of confidence among iron and steel producers that next month will bring more definite signs of improvement."—Skills' Review.

Inauguration Day
The Dictionary of United States History says that the choice of March 4 as inauguration day dates back to 1788. The first Wednesday in January, 1788, was fixed upon for the choice of the electors; the first Wednesday in February for the voters; and the first Wednesday in March, which came upon the 4th, for the inauguration. The twelfth amendment makes this the constitutional day.

To Induce Sleep
Counting sheep as a relief from insomnia doesn't always work. We recall one occasion that we counted wool. We smelled the wool on a thousand backs and even then had to get up and read a farm bulletin.—Toledo Blade.

Only One Target
Scattering shotgun fire may be all right for small game, but you must use a bullet to bring down the big ones. It's the same way in life. Set one goal, then keep aiming at that target. Scattering your energies brings but meager returns.—Orin.

Geographies
South Florida has a lake by the name of Histocopatchecheechee, which should make the fish about as dinky as you who are reading this. And for those who have the fishing itch, we refer you to Hetchuckee river in the same state.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Color Sense in Dogs
Dog owners can try a simple little experiment to find out whether or not their pets have a color sense. Throw a pink cany— or a raspberry when they are in season—down on grass and see if the dog has any difficulty in finding it. A collie will very often have to smell for the prize, but there are dogs of other breeds which will locate it by eye alone. You can safely say that they are able to distinguish colors.

Small Books
Among the smallest books is the 21-page, illustrated Scholom English Almanac presented to the public museum at Oshkosh, Wis., by Mrs. W. W. Waterhouse. It is a half-inch wide, seven-eighths of an inch long and one-eighth of an inch thick. It was printed in 1842.

A Little Knowledge
Certain historians have fallen out over the question of whether Peter Stuyvesant's wooden leg was the right leg or the left leg. Most of us casual students of history have been satisfied with the knowledge that old Peter went through most of his life with one foot in the grave.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Coffee Bean Problem
The coffee bean is an extremely resistant substance; it is very tough; it is almost impossible to powder it or disintegrate it by pounding, and hence it is quite impracticable to attempt to grind or reduce to a powder the green coffee bean before extraction. If this could take place the actual labor of extracting the caffeine would be very much decreased, and the degree of extraction increased.

Width of State Roads
The bureau of public roads says the width of state and county roads is not a federal matter. The federal government may have something to say about the width of those roads using federal aid, but the width would vary with each road and circumstances.
