Coat Lost From Window — 7,000 Feet In The Air

By United Press.
PITTSBURGH, March 15.—Lost: a transport pilot's coat 7,000 feet up in the air.
Pilot of a Pennsylvania Central Airline plane from Detroit to Washington today, Capt. S. C. Pierman of Detroit became a bit warm in the cockpit. So he took off his coat and opened a window.
As the plane was flying over Martinsburg, W. Va., at a height of 7,000 feet, the pilot's coat fluttered out of the plane window.
Capt. Pierman was disturbed over losing a pouch of his favorite chewing tobacco, which was in a pocket of the coat.
