A special dispatch to The News Tribune from Duluth states that three bodies that were believed to be the remains of the fourth member of the Don Voyage family that was carried off by the Sept. 30, 1893, fire in the Altman Block, have been identified. The remains were exhumed from the Altman Block yesterday afternoon and were brought to town for identification.

The case of the missing young man from Duluth was one of the most tragic incidents of the fire. The body was never found, and it was believed that the young man had perished in the fire. The family was left without a breadwinner and the loss was a great shock to them.

The identification of the bodies was made possible by the kindness of the Government Inspectors who agreed to exhumate the remains and bring them to town for identification.

The family was overjoyed to find that the bodies had been identified and that they could now put the hearts to rest. They were grateful to the Government Inspectors for their help and kindness.

The family was left with a great sense of relief and was able to move on with their lives. They were able to start anew and build a new life. The family was grateful for the help of the Government Inspectors and the community who had supported them during their time of need.
