Coroner C. F. McComb has made an investigation into the probable identity of the young man whose skeleton was found near the Calvary cemetery road, out far from Woodland, a few days ago, and has become convinced that he was Joseph Josephs, a Superior Hebrew, who disappeared a couple of years ago.

The circumstances, Mr. McComb says, all indicate a rather mysterious disappearance of the youth who was about 18 years.

Josephs was a violinist, and devoted to his instrument. He was accustomed to sell various small staple articles from house to house.

The fact that the small, 22-calibre gun was found by the skeleton leads to the supposition that the man committed suicide.

On the other hand, if he were slain for what money and valuables he may have had on him, the murderer would scarcely have left the weapon as it would be likely to be identified by somebody and the crime traced.
