

SECTIONS

ONLY $1 FOR 4 MONTHS
Subscribe now

LOG IN

LEARN MORE ABOUT SUBSCRIPTIONS

Highland Park shooting: No bail for accused shooter, who also considered 2nd...

These are the victims of the Fourth of July parade shooting in Highland Park

Alleged shooter in Highland Park July 4th parade attack charged with 7 counts of...

Highland Park shooting victims include both p of toddler found wanc

ADVERTISEMENT

ELITE STREET REAL ESTATE

Former Northwestern journalism dean sells Evanston house for $1 million

By BOB GOLDSBOROUGH
CHICAGO TRIBUNE | AUG 17, 2016

FEEDBACK

SALE

$1 FOR 4 MONTHS
4th of July Sale ends soon!

SAVE NOW

FEEDBACK

Former Medill dean John Lavine has sold his Evanston home for about $1 million. (Handout / Northwestern University)

SALE | $1 FOR 4 MONTHS
4th of July Sale ends soon!

SAVE NOW

Lavine served as the school's dean from 2006 until 2012 before stepping down to teach and return to work at Northwestern's Media Management Center. Earlier this year, he left Northwestern to move to California, where he is CEO of a firm that consults on media-related issues.

ADVERTISEMENT

Built in 1987 and located in Evanston's Lakeshore Historic District, the house has 2-1/2 baths, a two-story foyer, a vaulted two-story living room with a fireplace and custom built-ins, an enclosed porch and an attached garage.

Lavine and his wife paid $750,000 for the house in 1995. They first listed it in September for $1.325 million and later reduced their asking price to $1.25 million and then to $1.15 million before selling it for $1,002,500.

ADVERTISEMENT

ADVERTISEMENT

FEEDBACK

The couple declined to comment on the sale.

Bob Goldsborough is a freelance reporter.

SALE

$1 FOR 4 MONTHS
4th of July Sale ends soon!

SAVE NOW

